CHURCH OF ENGLAND BOOK SOCIETY.

AT a Special Meeting of the Committee of the Church of England Book Society, holden on Friday, 9th June, 1843,

The Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Australia in the Chair. It was unanimously resolved—

1. That the thanks of this Society are most justly due, and are hereby most cordially rendered to the Reverend Robert Allwood, B. A., for the very able, learned, temperate, and judicious course of Lectures delivered by him, on the Papal Claim to Supremacy, wherein it has been convincingly shown that this claim is neither founded on the authority of Holy Scripture, nor sanctioned by the consent of the Catholic Church, as the same is expressed in the decrees of General Councils, and handed down by the testimony of the early Fathers.

2. That the above resolution be communicated to Mr. Allwood by a deputation, consisting of the Rev. T. W. Bodenham, and Messrs. R Campbell, H. J. Hatch, R. W. Goodall, and R. Driver, who be at the same time instructed to request his permission for the publication of the course of Lectures, at the expense of this society.

3. That the foregoing resolutions be published thrice, in such newspapers as the Committee at its next meeting shall appoint.

W. G. AUSTRALIA, Chairman.

THE PEOPLE AND THEIR RIGHTS!!

WHAT, would I ask, is there more dear to Britain's sons than the exercise of their birthright of selecting their representatives? The approaching Election demands the best attention of every well-wisher of his country. Gentlemen Electors of Cumberland,—as I fear the time will not admit of my personally soliciting your votes as a candidate to represent your interests in the Legislative Council, allow me to assure you, if you elect me as your representative, I shall endeavour to prove myself in all respects deserving of your choice; and I pledge myself to protect your rights—to watch over your interests—to understand your wants—to crush monopoly—to ensure cheap and equal laws for rich and poor—to secure liberty of conscience to all creeds and classes of our fellow-countrymen—and to the best of my ability to promote the welfare and prosperity of this our country.

I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

JOHN RYAN BRENAN.

Garryowen House, June 6. 8033

TO THE INDEPENDENT ELECTORS OF THE COUNTIES OF ROXBURGH AND WELLINGTON.

GENTLEMEN,—The electoral Districts and Counties which are to return Members for the Colonial Legislature, having been promulgated, I hasten to announce to you my intention of soliciting the honour of being your Representative.

I have requested the honour of representing the Counties of Roxburgh and Wellington, from the fact of my having some stake in the former County, added to the idea that I shall have it in my power of being of some service to them; I have also been induced to offer myself to your notice, that I may have an opportunity of assuring you how much I have the interest of your Counties at heart, and of convincing you by my votes, (should you do me the honour of electing me), of my determination to oppose every act that I may deem prejudicial to your interests; while at the same time it will be my duty to give my cordial support to the best of my ability to every suggestion having for its object the general welfare and prosperity of the Colony. I have watched with much anxiety the cause of the distress which of late years has fallen upon this, our Country; and I have no hesitation in asserting my belief that they have chiefly emanated, and are mainly attributable, to the mistaken and short-sighted policy, not of our local, but our home Government: to counteract the evil of this fatal tendency, it behoves every person who has a stake or any interest in the prosperity and happiness of this country, to come forward at this period and appear before its constituency, that the electors may have an opportunity of selecting the men best fitted for the performance of the many and arduous tasks that must necessarily devolve on the commencement of a new Legislative Council.

I will do myself the honour of canvassing the Counties of Roxburgh and Wellington personally, and through my friends, at the earliest possible period.

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen,
Your faithful servant,
W. RUSSELL.

Regentville, Penrith, January 14. 797

BELLE VUE HOUSE ACADEMY, FOR YOUNG LADIES.

CONDUCTED BY MRS. WARDLOW.

MRS. WARDLOW, in continuing the establishment, begs to say that she has been for many years engaged as finishing governess in some of the first families of Great Britain, including those of Sir Lionel Smith, late Governor of the Mauritius; Sir Henry and Captain Pottinger, from whom she has excellent testimonials.

From her long experience in teaching, and the satisfaction hitherto expressed by the parents of those young ladies who have already shone as ornaments both at the British and Indian Courts, Mrs. W. flatters herself that there is not another lady in the colony more competent to form the minds and manners of young people, and fit them for the higher circles, than herself. She can also refer to some of the most respectable families in Sydney.

The Boarding Establishment is conducted on the plan of a private gentleman's family, and as the young ladies are constantly under the inspection of Mrs. W., she pledges herself to those who may favour her by their patronage, that no exertion on her part shall be omitted to render them all that the fondest parents can desire.

Mrs. W. invites the ladies of Sydney to inspect her paintings, and those of the ladies under her tuition at present.

She will also give private lessons on the pianoforte, harp, guitar, and singing.

Terms, &c. may be known on application at her Establishment, Kent-street.

June 2nd, 1843.

A CARD.

MR. A. FOSS, Surgeon-Dentist, 18, Pitt-street, Sydney. From the very extensive practice which Mr. F. has had for many years as Surgeon-Dentist, his operations on the Teeth may be depended on as being perfectly safe. His attention has also been particularly given to the regulation of children's teeth, during the time of changing them. 5976

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

TEETH—A NEW DISCOVERY.

MR. J. EMANUEL, Surgeon Dentist, continues to supply the loss of Teeth, from one to a whole set, upon the peculiar and successful system of self-adhesion. These artificial Teeth have been found to answer all the purposes of the original Teeth in mastication, articulation, appearance, &c., and to remain perfectly secure in their places by capillary attraction, and the pressure of the atmosphere occasioning a natural adhesion to the gum only, so that the wearer soon becomes unconscious that he uses artificial Teeth. They may also be taken out and replaced by the wearer with the greatest facility. These improvements enable him to supply whole or half sets without the spiral springs which are usually attached to such pieces.

N.B. As some persons are under an apprehension that they must be put to great pain and inconvenience by the removal of Teeth and Stumps, and other painful operations before they can be supplied with artificial teeth, I feel it incumbent on me to remove this error, so far as relates to my system, which requires no removal of Teeth or Stumps, or any pain or inconvenience whatever, any more than if the article in question were an ordinary piece of dress.

LIST OF CHARGES.	£	s.	d.
A single tooth	2	2	0
Stopping with gold cement .	0	10	6
Ditto with pure gold leaf .	0	15	0
Scaling	0	10	6
Extracting	0	5	0

In conclusion, Mr. Emanuel invites the special attention of his patients, any medical gentleman, and the public in general, to examine HIS DIPLOMA AS DENTIST, having received the same from the MEDICAL BOARD OF HOLLAND, in the year 1836.

Children's teeth carefully attended to.

At home from 9, A.M., till 5, P.M.

Residence—George-street, opposite Bridge-street. 7610

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

W. BEAVER AND SON, Undertakers, &c., begs to inform the public in general, that they have removed their business from King to Pitt street, next to Martyn's Carriage Bazaar, where orders can be received and punctually attended to.

REMOVAL.

MR. PARRY LONG, Solicitor, &c., has removed his offices to Terry's Buildings, Pitt-street, Sydney, next door to Messrs. J. and R. Bicknell's, and opposite Mr. Foss's Chemist and Druggist Shop.

June 13 8050

NOTICE TO TRAVELLERS AND THE PUBLIC.

MR. CHARLES SUTHERLAND, formerly of the London Tavern, George-street, Sydney, begs to inform his numerous Friends and the Public that he has lately opened those commodious and spacious Premises, known by the sign of the Angel Inn, Liverpool Road, about eight miles from the City, and twelve from Liverpool, which has lately been occupied by Mr. William Smith.

The situation and accommodation of the house need no comment, as it is well known to all travellers, for the accommodation of themselves and their cattle.

C. S. hopes that with his prompt attention, he will gain the favour of those individuals who have formerly given him their support. Travellers will find first-rate paddocks for both bullocks, sheep, and horses, coming from the interior, with good feed and an abundance of good water in the driest seasons. Terms very moderate.

Wedding parties can be accommodated with dinners or luncheons equal to any house in the colony, on the shortest notice; the stock of wines, ales, &c., being from the first houses. 8108

KING-STREET FURNITURE AND BEDDING WAREHOUSE AND CABINET MANUFACTORY.

H. FRANCIS begs to inform his friends and the public, that he has the largest stock of new and second-hand Furniture in the colony, comprising every thing useful and elegant for furnishing a house, which he is determined to sell at the lowest possible profit; and the following are a few of the principal articles:—Four-post, French, tent, and iron bedsteads; chests of drawers, wardrobes, toilet, chimney, and pier glasses; loo, card, drawing, pembroke, office, dressing, and other tables; couches, sofas, of every description; chairs—stuffed seated and caned; Indian matting, carpets, hearth-rugs, and floor-cloth.

Gentlemen having furniture to dispose of or exchange, may find it an advantage to apply to H. F.; and he also removes furniture with a spring van. 64

SHEEP BOILING.

MR. ARMSTRONG, Veterinary Surgeon, begs to inform the Proprietors of Sheep, that he has fitted up an Establishment for the above purpose, on St. John's Farm, near the Orphan School, three miles from Liverpool, four from Prospect, and half a mile from Smithfield Market.

St. John's Farm consists of nearly 2000 acres, with plenty of grass, and a large and constant supply of water.

The system proposed is, that on the arrival of a flock of sheep at the farm, a circular letter should be sent to the Butchers of Sydney, Parramatta, and Liverpool, specifying particulars, and inviting their inspection; should a satisfactory price by this means be realized, a commission on the sale will be charged; should there be no demand at the time, they will be immediately boiled down, and their product of tallow prepared for the market.

It is recommended that the inside and flesh fat should be boiled and packed separately, which will be done, if not directed to the contrary; the wool will be taken off the skins, carefully washed, packed and sorted by a professed fellmonger; lodgings and rations for shepherds at one shilling per day each, may be had on the establishment, and a comfortable room with suitable accommodation for the owner or superintendent, during the sale or boiling down of the sheep.

The charge for grass, boiling down, washing wool, packing, carriage to Sydney, brokerage, and all other expenses, will be one shilling per head; should casks be required for exportation, the cost price only will be charged: the legs may be salted or sent fresh to Sydney, Liverpool, or Parramatta, for sale, on payment of the additional expense actually incurred.

By a careful investigation, it has been ascertained that the carcase of a fine-wooled sheep, devoid of fat, will generally average 30 lbs., and of a sheep crossed-bred with Leicesters, 35 lbs.; consequently, in making a calculation, all that the carcase weighs above 30 and 35 lbs. may be considered as fat: thus a fine wooled sheep, weighing 60 lbs., will yield 30 lbs. of fat, and a Leicester of 60 lbs. 25 lbs. of fat, and other weights in proportion.

All communications on the subject will be received and attended to by Mr. Armstrong, at his Repository, Castlereagh-street, and a confidential person will carry on the process at the farm. 8190

TO BEEF SALTERS, DAIRYMEN, AND OTHERS.

EVANS AND HARPER most respectfully inform them, that they have just bought a large quantity of material, new and old, and having the largest cooperage in City, with the best of workmen are capable of supplying beef tierces either for exportation or colonial service, in any quantity, at the lowest price possible, and at a very short notice.

A large stock of dairy work and other articles, round and oval, always on hand.

Spirit Merchants and Storekeepers supplied with kegs or other articles, wholesale, at a very low price.

Boatbuilders and others supplied with new staves.

City Cooperage,
Opposite the Police Office, George-street. 7210

PEREMPTORY NOTICE.

Those persons who have subscribed (?) to this journal, but have not paid for the quarters forming the last two and a half years, during which period it has been in the hands of the present proprietors,—are hereby desired to take notice, that unless the respective accounts are settled by the 30th of June, either at this office, or through one of the agents, their names will be erased from the subscription book, and proceedings taken to recover, without further notice.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We shall not insert any letters on the subject of the riots on Thursday, as they can do no good; but we shall feel obliged if well authenticated facts are sent for our private information, as we intend to make a few observations on Police, as soon as the excitement of the election is over.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

MONDAY, JUNE 19, 1843.

"Sworn to no Master, of no Sect am I."

OUR NEW EXPORT.

Our amusing correspondent Robin Goodfellow, in one of his interesting, but sadly fallacious, letters upon Agriculture, remarks upon the tendency of the people of this colony to fly off upon every new scheme that presents itself. At one time all the energies of the colony have been devoted to the cultivation of tobacco, at another time to the growth of maize, then to the production of fine wool, lately to salting beef, and now, he might say, to boiling down sheep for their tallow: for although it is little more than a month since we first drew the attention of the public to the subject, go into what society you may, "their talk is of tallow."

The discovery, for so it may be called, that fat sheep contain tallow, although but a few weeks old, has had the most beneficial effect upon the interests of the graziers: sheep that were in April and the beginning of May unsaleable, are now worth from five to eight shillings each; and below that price, sheep in good condition can never become again: for if they are melted down, the tallow they will produce is worth that sum.

A letter from Mr. H. O'Brien, giving the result of some experiments on this subject will be found in another column, from which it will be seen that he estimates the worth of a moderate-sized sheep at fourteen shillings; and as he calculates the price of tallow at thirty per cent. below its price in London in February last, the value placed on that, the most important item, is below the truth. But supposing that a sheep is only worth eight shillings, what a relief this is to the graziers: they have now a standard, something at which to estimate the intrinsic value of their sheep, which, but a few weeks since, they could not get rid of at any price. Now we shall have casks of tallow sent from the interior as regularly as bales of wool, and they will be quite as saleable in the London, and, consequently, in the Sydney market.

We must confess that we have some fears that this system may be pursued to too great a length. The demand for sheep for Sydney is very considerable, and is not likely to diminish, while the surplus stock in the colony is, we feel persuaded, very small. If, therefore, too many sheep are killed for the sake of the fat, it will be injurious to the colony, by diminishing the export of wool. No young sheep should be killed: the sheep that are slaughtered should be culls, and on this point we would refer to the letter of our intelligent Correspondent F. E., in Saturday's paper.

We shall in future quote the prices of tallow as regularly as those of wool. In Culverwell and Brook's Circular, dated February 1st, we find that South American tallow is quoted at 40s. to 48s. 6d. per cwt., with 3s. 2d. per cwt. duty; Russian, 44s. to 48s., 3s. 2d. duty; Indian tallow, 40s. to 50s. 9d., duty 3d.; Cape tallow, 42s. to 49s. 6d., duty 3d. per cwt. (of course tallow from this colony will only pay the low duty.) New South Wales sheep-skins are quoted at 26s. to 33s. 6d. per dozen; and among the sales we notice, "288 New South Wales sheep long wools, weighing 50 lbs. at 30s. 6d. per dozen; short ditto, weighing 30 lbs., at 10s. 9d.

REMOVAL OF JUDGE WILLIS.

We have much pleasure in announcing the removal from the bench of Mr. Justice Willis. It is understood that Mr. Jeffcott will succeed him. This gentleman has not been long in the colony; but when he left Ireland he received some handsome compliments from the profession, and was invited to a public dinner, a report of the proceedings at which we some months since copied into the Herald from a Dublin paper.

PORT PHILLIP.

The Melbourne papers to the 10th inst., which came to hand on Saturday, contain little but electioneering intelligence. Mr. Condell, the Mayor, had started in opposition to Mr. Curr, for the town of Melbourne. We are sorry to observe that there was every probability of Dr. Lang being elected.

SYDNEY BANKING COMPANY.

On Saturday last, pursuant to previous notice, a meeting of the Shareholders of this Bank took place at the banking-house in George-street, at one o'clock. Nearly one hundred proprietors were present. Mr. George Miller, the Chairman of the Board of Directors, was called to the chair.

The Chairman opened the business of the meeting, by reading the requisition of the proprietors to the Directors, to call a meeting to enquire into the Company's affairs; various rumours had gone abroad relative to the Bank, and he would now state what had first called the attention of the Directors to the state of their affairs, and led to their recent proceedings. He went on to state, that he was casually informed in April, on a day after the Directors had met, that the accountant had overdrawn to the amount of £4000 and upwards, although, on the previous day, the gross amount of overdrawn accounts had been stated to the Directors to be only £4000. Enquiry was made, the information found to be too true, and other discoveries came to light which resulted in Lord (the Manager) and Cockburn's (the Accountant) suspension from office. The Directors had no objection to meet the proprietors, but did not think it right to call them together without being requested to do so, and the steps now to be taken rested with the meeting. Mr. Miller then alluded to the fact of Mr. Lord's having deceived the Directors in the amount of coin in the Bank, it being found, on examination, that he was holding as cash a dishonoured cheque of J. T. Hughes' for £6000; and that another of £1000, and one of Hughes and Hosking's for £2300, had been retained in the same manner, and were only paid in on the morning of the examination; which facts, with the £9000 overdrawn by the officers, had put the affair of the Bank in a worse position than they otherwise would have been. It would be seen, that if two officers thus conspire to deceive the Directors, they could do so to a large extent, unless a surveillance was exercised, which was not usual in the Colonial Banks They had had full confidence in the Manager and the Accountant, and had previously seen no reason to regret it had been placed in them. Mr. Miller, after several other remarks, concluded by alluding to the statement made by Mr. Cockburn in the Insolvency Court, to the effect that all the Directors were in the habit of overdrawing. This he said was not the fact: for his own part be had sometimes overdrawn for two or three hundred pounds for a few days, and at other times was only overdrawn four or five pounds. There was, however, one Director, the amount of whose overdrawn account the Manager had studiously concealed from the other Directors.

Mr. Foster observed, that with regard to the overdrawn accounts, they had been expressly brought before the last meeting, in order that the sense of the proprietors might be taken as to allowing them in future; but such was the confidence reposed in the Manager, that his statement respecting the overdrawn accounts being generally not more than £3000 to £4000 was correct, they did not press the matter, but left it to the discretion of the Directors, so that they, the Directors, were as much deceived as the shareholders. He confessed himself culpable for not attending to his duties as a Director; but he should not shrink from any responsibility that might be attached to it. His account had never been overdrawn.

Mr. Acton Sillitoe addressed the meeting at considerable length. He said, he little expected when they attended the last meeting of proprietors in that room, that the statements then put before them would prove so fallacious—he might almost say so totally devoid of truth. It would be remembered, that the documents showed an average of overdrawn accounts of about £4000, or at most one or two hundred more; whilst in fact, at that very time, they were overdrawn somewhere about £35,000. But this was not the statement of the Directors; it was the statement of the then Manager, Mr. Lord. He was thoroughly convinced, from all he saw at that previous meeting, as well as from the conduct of the Directors subsequently, that they, the Directors, were as ignorant of the true state of these accounts as any other shareholder who was present. Nor did he blame them. They had had no reason to doubt the honesty and truth of the Manager and Accountant; and therefore they believed those statements to be correct. Some persons had blamed the Directors for not appointing auditors; it was only this morning that he (Mr. Sillitoe) had read the deed, and he found that the deed did not authorise them to do so. He thought, if the Bank was continued, an auditor should be appointed. In reference to the cash in the Bank, all who were present at the meeting previously referred to, would remember the willingness Mr. Lord manifested that some one or two proprietors should go down at once and count the money; and so perfectly candid and anxious did he appear that they should do so, that all suspicion was lulled, even in the breasts of those shareholders who had put the question respecting the specie. The next point he would allude to was, as regarded the future. He thought, under all circumstances, they should continue the management in their own hands: for was it to be supposed that any Bank, connected as they all were in the colony, would not, whenever occasion required, give a preference to the payment of all bills in which they were directly interested themselves, whenever they might clash with that interest. An argument was also attempted to be shown, that, as the shares were at a discount, it was impossible that the Bank could go on with any prospect of advantage; this he could not, without further information, agree to, for he was at a loss to select any property at this time that was at a premium; and he was sure that the disclosures that had lately been made, had they applied to any company or firm here or elsewhere, the same result would have inevitably taken place, and property perfectly solvent, have been depreciated to a far greater extent. He was decidedly for carrying on the Bank; but, in doing this, he knew they had adverse interests to contend with. What other Bank, or what other house of business, if enquired into, and doubts and surmises expressed in every direction, as had been the case with the Sydney Bank, would be able to pay forty shillings in the pound? He was surprised at Mr. Lamb's proposition at the last meeting, that of handing over the accounts to another Bank to wind up. Let gentlemen take into consideration the inconvenience of thus being handed over; whose bills would have the preference; their own customers, or those of the Sydney Bank? If the Bank is to be wound up, surely the proprietors could do it without calling in other and adverse persons. A good deal had been said about the depreciation of the Sydney Bank stock. He admitted that the shares were at a discount. But, he would ask, where was the Bank stock, or where was the property, of any description, at a premium? (Hear, hear). He again referred to the observation of Mr. Lamb, who had candidly and positively affirmed, that the returns made by the Manager and Accountant were well calculated to deceive any body of Directors; he (Mr. S.) was sure, that with Mr. Lamb's knowledge on these subjects they would, as a body, acquit them, as he did, of any positive neglect of their duty. After a few other observation, Mr. Sillitoe concluded by proposing

> That a Committee be appointed by this meeting to act with the Directors in the management of the Bank; and to lay before the proprietors, with as little delay as possible, a statement of their affairs, in order that such proceedings may be recommended as are best calculated for the interests of the shareholders.

Mr. Dalley seconded the motion.

The Chairman was afraid he could not put the motion in its present shape. The deed gave no power to appoint shareholders to act with the Directors.

Mr. Moreing was about to propose an amendment, when several shareholders suggested that Mr. Sillitoe's motion could be so altered as not to be inconsistent with the deed.

After some discussion it was amended, and unanimously agreed to as follows:—

Proposed by Mr. Sillitoe, and seconded by Mr. Moses Joseph,

> That a Committee be appointed by this meeting to investigate and report to the proprietors of the Bank, with as little delay as possible, a statement of its affairs, in order that such proceedings may be recommended as are best calculated for the interests of the shareholders.

The question of the number of gentlemen to compose the Committee was then discussed, some persons thinking it should consist of six, and others three. It was finally unanimously resolved, that three should be selected.

On the nomination of gentlemen to form the Committee being gone into, universal discussion arose. Several gentlemen, Directors in other banks, were proposed, but objected to; and it was at length determined that Messrs. Sillitoe, Moir, and Thomas Brown, should be elected. Those gentlemen having signified their willingness to act, the question was put and carried.

Mr. Alexander Campbell said, it might appear great boldness on his part, as the junior Director, to make any observation, but he must say, that appointing a Committee exhibited a want of confidence in the Directors. He was not a large proprietor, but he was willing to resign his seat at the board at any moment. As to gain, by being a Director, he was sure every Director had lost. He would not consent to sit as a Director if his integrity were doubted.

The Chairman said, the Board of Directors was desirous that the state of the Bank should be fully known to the proprietors.

Mr. Foster (another Director) said, they had showed the utmost anxiety all along to display everthing; he had been under great obligations at one time to Mr. Lord's family, but he could not forbear saying, that they had been most scandalously used by him.

Mr. Thomas Woolley wished a time to be appointed for the Report of the Committee to be made; he had heard that one of the Directors was buying up the shares largely at a very reduced price (cries of "no, no"); he had been assured so ("name"); he did not know the name of the Director.

The Chairman observed upon the folly of listening to unfounded rumours.

The meeting was engaged for some time longer in conversation and discussion upon points which could not be fully entered upon until the Committee made their report.

The Chairman replied to several questions, and in answer to one, as to whether Mr. Lord, the late Manager, had paid his overdrawn account, he said, neither had Mr. Lord, or any of his family, paid their overdrawn accounts.

A vote of thanks was voted to the Chairman, and the meeting adjourned till next Saturday.

SYDNEY COLLEGE.—June, 1843.

(Communicated.)

Prizes were proposed for the best essay on the subject—

Πυρῶ το μεν σῶμα ειναι φιλοπονος
Την δε ψυχην φιλοσοφος,

and for the best copy of verses on "Friendship."

The candidates concealed their names, and merely adopted some motto by which they could know their respective productions.

The decision was left in the hands of John Rae, Esq., A.M., who kindly undertook the task.

The following extracts are made from his Report:—

"THEMES.

I have gone over the Themes carefully, and, after mature deliberation, and a sincere wish to deal justly with each of the competitors, am disposed to arrange them in the following order of merit (according to their mottoes), viz.:—

1. Fiat justitia, ruat cœlum. (Crawford major.)
2. Temperance. (Stephen, M. H.)
3. Mens sana in corpore sano.
4. I bide my time.
5. Nil desperandum.

VERSES ON FRIENDSHIP.

Of the three candidates for poetical honours, I think there is not much difficulty in stating that the best are—

1. "Spes." (Owen major.)
2. Palmam qui meruit, ferat. (Bligh.)
3. Detur digniori.

I may state, generally, of the themes, that, with the exception of the fifth, each of the first four betrays a very considerable knowledge of the principles of composition.

The poetical exercises, particular the first and second, more particularly the first, are really admirable, if they be the work of boys, and speak pretty plainly of a genius for poetical numbers of no mean order. The anapæstic measure of No. 2 is very pure on the whole, the lines are flowing, and the sentiments good, particularly in the closing couplets; but I prefer the Attic chasteness of the heroic measure in No. 1. They are both well worth a page in the New South Wales Magazine, and I hope to see them, and No. 1 of the themes, in the next number.

Finally:—Although I have been obliged to select two exercises for prizes, I should do injustice to the unsuccessful competitors, did I not record the pleasure I have derived from the perusal of their themes and verses; all of which reflect much credit on their young authors, and on those who have taught their ideas to shoot so prematurely and so well."

It is but due to the writers of the verses to say, that it has been ascertained by diligent enquiry, that they received no assistance in their compositions.

By the kindness of the proprietors of the miscellany referred to above, the prize essay and poems will appear in the next number.

On Wednesday evening, prizes were distributed to the following students in the boarding establishment, for a due regard to gentlemanly conduct at table, attention to cleanliness, good behavour in their dormitories, &c., &c.: Wentworth, Crawford major, Chisholm major, Brunker, Crawford minor, G. Flood, Roberts major, Dangar major, Hunter, Antill minor, Garrick, Scarr, Dangar minor, and Dickson.

CHARGE OF MURDER.

On Saturday last an inquisition took place in Leburne's public house, opposite the Benevolent Asylum, on the body of a freed man, named David Finnie, who died on Thursday evening about ten o'clock, in consequence of the injuries which he received during the day.

Previous to the Jury being sworn in, the Coroner expressed his regret at seeing so many gentlemen present from almost every ward in the city, and, at the same time, intimated his determination to allow none but citizens of the ward to sit on the inquiry. Several persons who had been called in expressed their regret at having been called on to act as Jurors; but, at the same time, informed his Worship that they had no intention of sitting on such an inquiry as that before him if they could avoid it. The following Jury was then impannelled:—Thomas J. Walton, foreman; Edmund Healy, John Gray, Edward Fitzgibbons, Henry Hayes, Jacob Goode, Joseph Oliff, Joseph Leburne, David Rennie, Goodeman Hart, John Walsh, Thomas Quigley, Henry Reuben, Francis Foster, and William Webster.

A man named Daniel Mooney was placed at the bar in custody.

William Barnes being sworn, deposed: I reside on the Brickfield-hill; I did not know the deceased; on Thursday morning last I was not in company with the prisoner, but I knew him as a wheelwright in the employ of Mr. Walton, of Brickfield-hill; there was a crowd on Brickfield-hill; I saw a man knocked down near Donovan's, which is higher up, near the burying ground; he was somewhat hurt, but I did not see that he was at all hurt; I went down the hill; I did not see Mooney there, nor did I see another man knocked down; I have seen the deceased, he is not the man I saw knocked down; I told Ward, the constable, that I had heard that Mooney had killed two men; I have also heard that Dr. Whittle was knocked down by Mooney; I did not see Mooney knock any one down; I did not see Mooney strike a blow; I did not see the deceased struck; I did not see the prisoner till between three and four o'clock on Thursday; he was not at work during any part of that day.

By one of the Jurors: I know several persons of the name of Mooney.

Cross-examined by the prisoner: I heard of two or three men of your name; I have known you for all the time you have been in the country, which is between three and four years; you have always been a quiet peaceable man.

Joseph Ward, a constable, deposed: I knew the preceding witness, who told me that Mooney had killed two men on the Brickfield hill; Mulvaney, a watchman on the Brickfield-hill, was also present; I swear that Barnes must have seen Mooney at the head of the mob, and must have known him, as they work both in the same shop.

By the Jurors: Barnes did not say he saw anything of the blows struck; Barnes said only that he had heard of Mooney striking the deceased; I did not see Mooney strike any person on the Race Course; the prisoner was only about two hundred yards from me.

Cross-examined by the prisoner: I saw you at the head of the mob; I always took you to be a quiet man; I never saw you strike a man in my life.

Matthew Mulvaney: I know Barnes, who came up to Ward and me on the Race Course, when Barnes said that he knew a man who had killed two at least; he said that Mooney had killed one man; I cannot swear that he said that he saw the man killed; it was about mid-day when he made the statement to Ward and me.

Cross-examined by the prisoner: I have known you three years; you have always been a quiet, peaceable man, so far as I know.

George Wilkie: I was sworn in as a special constable on Thursday last; I saw a mob of people running down Brickfield-hill about 11 a. m.; I saw a man lying on the road, who had been knocked down; I have since seen the body of a man, which I believe is that of the person that I then saw lying on the road.

By the Coroner: I saw you within a few minutes of the time, the deceased was lying nearly opposite Hock's; I do not recollect your telling me to get him carried off the street, nor to get him conveyed to the Hospital; I recollect that you told me that you would drive on and try to pacify them; I saw Cooper and O'Connell's men meet, and mentioned it to you; the prisoner is not the man who knocked the handle off the axe; I thought the deceased was in the care of his friends, or, if otherwise, I should have done my utmost to assist him.

Cross-examined by the prisoner: I did not see the prisoner in the mob, nor did I see him strike any one on Thursday morning.

Henry Garvin, a constable in the Sydney police, deposed: I was on duty on Thursday last, when Mrs. Dickson called me about six p.m., and told me that the deceased was lying very bad in a partly finished house in George-street, and to get him removed, which I did, by taking him to the Benevolent Asylum.

Mr. Alexander Cuthill, surgeon to the Benevolent Asylum, then deposed as follows: David Fennie was received into the Benevolent Asylum on Thursday evening, the 15th June, and was then in a state of insensibility, and died within forty minutes after his being admitted. Mr. Cuthill also certified that he had examined the body of the deceased, and had found an extensive contusion on the right eye and temple, and a large lacerated wound, with a contusion a little above the left ear: on making a post mortem examination, he found a large quantity of coagulated blood on the surface, but more particularly on the left side and bone of the brain. Here also there was an extensive fracture of the bones, extending from left to right across the orbits, which was more complete on the left than on the right side. Mr. Cuthill declared it as his solemn opinion, that the injuries above described were the direct cause of death, and that no human means could have saved the man's life. He had examined the chest and abdomen of the deceased, in which he saw no appearance of injury or disease; and that the injuries and fracture at the base of the brain had probably been caused by some heavy weapon, such as a bludgeon.

Mrs. Mary Dickson deposed: I saw a crowd on Brickfield-hill, and I saw a man who had been knocked down; I saw several persons looking at him, and I complained about him lying there, and said that in my opinion he was dying; one of the men said he was in want of bleeding, but there was no person to bleed him; I saw several sticks flying amongst the mob; it was about four in the afternoon when I said to Michael, "You will take him, won't you, to the Asylum?" and soon after he was removed.

The Coroner having informed the Jury that no exertions had been spared on the part of the police, to bring the guilty party to justice; but that, so far as the evidence had come before them, there was nothing at all to implicate the prisoner, there was no other course for them to follow, than to return a verdict, that the deceased had been murdered by some party or parties unknown. Mr. Brenan also stated, that in so far as he and Mr. Windeyer were concerned, they had no business to interfere in the outdoor work of the police, the sole management of which was vested in Mr. Miles; but seeing the symptoms of something like a disturbance while passing up George-street, he felt it his duty to do what he could to keep the peace of the city. Had he thought there was any such thing on foot, as that the peace of the city being broken, instead of being in his carriage he would have been on horseback.

The Jury, without the room being cleared, returned a verdict that murder had been committed, but that the perpetrators were unknown.

The Chairing.—A meeting took place on Saturday afternoon, of the friends of Messrs. Wentworth and Bland, when it was resolved that as those gentlemen had been returned by such a triumphant majority it would be unnecessary to go through the ceremony of chairing. It is therefore likely that all that will take place in regard to the City election is, that the Mayor will simply announce the state of the poll at noon at the polling place in Bourke Ward.

School of Arts.—We wish to call attention to the Lectures on Mechanics now being delivered at the School of Arts, by Mr. Moir: the members have now the opportunity of seeing this interesting subject illustrated with the most complete apparatus.

The Emancipists.—In our article respecting the defeat of Cooper, there was one point which we forgot to mention, and that is, that nine-tenths of the persons who disgraced themselves by voting for him, came free to the colony: very few persons who came as prisoners supported him. We think this fact, so creditable to the Emancipists, should not be lost sight of.

County of Cumberland Election.—We have been requested by Mr. Brenan to state that he has not, nor has he had, any intention of resigning in favour of, or coalescing with, any other candidate.

Police Court Business.—The general list at this office on Saturday, contained twenty-one charges, of which eight were remanded cases. Patrick Mullins, on suspicion of stealing, was remanded; Saul Solomons, for stealing, remanded till Monday; Patrick Carney, accessory to stealing, and William Jones, charged with a similar offence, was also remanded till Monday; James Quigly and James Mullaby, drunk and suspicion of stealing, remanded; Matthew Graytrix, passing base coin, remanded; Joseph Myers, stealing, discharged; John Fox, forgery, remanded; N. Holden, assault, discharged; J. Keegan, assault, admitted to bail; Isaac Howard and R. Pugh, stealing, committed; Edward Hall, for receiving stolen goods, committed for trial, but admitted to bail, himself in the sum of £80 and two sureties in the sum of £40 each; William Miller, drunk and suspicion of stealing, discharged; Isabella Paul, assault, remanded; James Turner, suspicion of stealing, discharged; Patrick Pindley and Joshua Crow, for stealing, committed; William Bell, obtaining money under false pretences, remanded. The drunkards' list contained nine charges, which were disposed off as follows: One fined 11s.; four sentenced twelve hours on the treadmill; H. Stapleton fined £1 1s.; W. Brown twenty-four hours on the mill; John Ward and John Evans, thirty six hours.

Sale of Mares.—The stock of brood mares at the Cattle Market, this day, to be sold by auction by Mr. Stubbs, are of the good Clydesdale and Camerton blood, and certainly a better lot (foals and all) could not be brought to the hammer—suiting the purposes of any breeder of horse stock.—Communicated.

St. Mary's Post Town.—The Post Office and two adjoining houses in this town will be sold this day, at the mart, by Mr. Stubbs, at twelve precisely; a very first-rate inn or post-house might be established upon this property, as the houses are brick-built, very extensive, and require but little fitting up for the purposes required. There being no reserve put on the sale, it is presumed is sufficient inducement to buyers, letting alone the liberality of the terms.—Communicated.

Elizabeth-street.—This day, on the ground, at one o'clock, Mr. Stubbs brings to the hammer, the valuable plot of ground between Dr. Bennett's and the late residence of C. H. Chambers, Esq., looked upon as the most preferable and healthy part of Hyde Park. The cottage, extensive buildings at the back, and out-premises, are included in the sale, as per advertisement, and presents a timely moment for any speculator to make one of the best hits in the land market of the day.—Communicated.

Sydney General Court of Quarter Sessions.—This Court closed its sittings on Saturday last, when all the cases were gone through. The Court was then adjourned for six weeks.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

WOLLONGONG RACES.

The Wollongong Races came off on the 12th and 13th instant with great éclat. The attendance was fashionable and numerous, many having attended from Jamberoo, Kiama, and Appin. I am rejoiced to say, that notwithstanding the little misunderstanding that occured before the races amongst the Subscribers, and the fear that political feelings would break out, all passed off very much to the credit of all persons and parties. The Stewards, W. W. Jenkins, Esq., Major M'Pherson, and Dr. J. Osborne, J.P., contributed all in their power to add to the comfort and pleasure of all; and the decision of the Judge, Captain Plunkett, was becoming a Judge; the Secretary, Mr. Davison, was most active during both days; nor must I omit to give the due meed of praise to the clerk of the course, Mr. J. Kennedy, for his great exertions in faithfully discharging the duties of his very troublesome office. The prizes were little more than nominal, which may be attributed to the short notice, not more than fourteen days; it is expected, however, that the next occasion will be of a higher character; though I am sure they will not be conducted more to the satisfaction of the race-going folks than the past. The first race was for £15; heats, 2 miles.

First Day.

Mr. Jenkins' Skylark, 6 years (Mr. Cumins)	1	1
Mr. Beatson's Nimrod, 6 years	2	2
Mr. Hyam's Jerry Sneak, aged	3	3

Skylark flew along like a bird on the wing,
Took the lead, and kept, all round the ring.
Nimrod coming second, push'd hard for the race,
And Jerry Sneak would, but he had not the pace.

The owners and backers of "Jerry Sneak" were not satisfied; they fancied that, because he won at Jamberroo he must win at Wollongong; and forsooth, they challenged Skylark to meet Jerry at the post immediately; calculating that the old one's age and endurance would beat the little one, as the course was heavy; but it was "no go," the little one was too good a trump, and was too well ridden to be beaten. Off they started, Skylark again took the lead, and won in a canter.

Second race, for two year olds. Heats 1 mile.

Ned Burke's Limerick Lass, g. f. (Smith)	1	1
Fitzgerald's Beeswing, b. f.	2	2
Hyam's Corinthian Kate, ch. f.	3	4
Mr. Brown's Chester, ch. c	4	3

This was a well contested race, Limerick Lass took the lead, followed close upon her heels by Beeswing, the pet of Dapto; Corinthian Kate kept a good place throughout; and Chester, considering that he had been roped but about three weeks, proved himself of good speed, good pluck, but poor bottom; the grey was in better condition and better ridden; Beeswing's rider had too much wax in his seat, and his reins were too loose, or, it is thought by the knowing ones, she would have taken both heats.

The third was a Pony race, for imported ponies.

Master Westmacott's Lion	bolted
Master Mears' Sir John	2
Whologhan's Toby	bolted

This was a regular scramble, all bolted at the start; Bounce and Sir John could only be prevailed upon to make their appearance, the former winning with ease.

Second Day.

Hurdle Race.—Not contested. Mr. Burke's grey gelding, Captain, cantered over, ridden by Jimmy, "half caste" of this colony. He is a first-rate horseman, and deserves much credit for the manner in which he trained the horse for this race. Mr. Burke gave the prize for the two other races.

Second Race. Hack Race. Heats one mile.

Mr. Beatson's g. g. Nimrod (owner)	2	1	1
Mr. Hyam's ch. h. Jerry Sneak	1	2	2
Mr. Burke's g. g. Abdalla	3	3	3

Abdalla bolted early in the race; tried it on again, but it was 'no go,' Nimrod would have it this time, and no mistake; and Jerry still kept his old pace, only to be beaten. I would recommend his owner to put him back to the plough or cart, he is fit for nothing else, and a little more corn, or less hard usage, would be no harm.

Third Race. For all horses not raced before.

Mr. Browne's g. g. Prince (Kennedy)	1	1
Mr. Jenkin's b. b. Tommy	2	dr.
Mr. Cann's g. g. Bobby	3	2
Peter Larkin's b. f. Galway Lass	4	3

This was a right good race, the pace a killing one from the start, and was beautifully ridden by young Kennedy, little more than a child in years, but showing more judgment in the management of his horse than many old riders. He takes his place a-head and keeps it, without unnecessarily pressing his horse.

Fourth Race. For the Beaten Stakes.

Fitzgerald's Beeswing, 2 years (Bickson)	1	1
Mr. Hyam's Jerry Sneak, aged	2	2
Mr. Brown's Chester, 2 years	3	dr.

Jerry again tried his luck, hoping to beat the two-year olds, to pay expenses home; but it wouldn't do at any price. Beeswing threw off the wax, and proved that she is true game, by winning both heats in good style.

Fifth Race. For all horses.

Mr. Burke's Captain (Mr. Cumins)	1	1
Mr. Brown's Postboy	2	2
Dr. Osborne's Jolly	3	dr.
Mr. Broughton's Claymore	4	dr.

This finished the sports, which did not terminate until very near sunset. The weather was propitious, although the clouds forbode anything but sunshine. It commenced raining on the evening of the first day, and ceased on the morning of the second, and held up fine all day; but at night set in wet, and has continued showery since.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR.

(From our various Correspondents.)

COUNTY OF NORTHUMBERLAND ELECTION

On Thursday last, the nomination of a candidate to serve in the Legislative Council took place at East Maitland. A substantial and commodious hustings was erected in the paddock in front of Cox's hotel, where upwards of a hundred of the electors were assembled; and at about half-past twelve o'clock, E. C. Close, Esq., the Returning Officer, appeared upon the hustings, and said, he presented himself to the electors of the county of Northumberland, in conformity with an Act of Parliament, the 5th and 6th of Queen Victoria, intituled "An Act for the Government of New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land," and also in conformity with the 28th section of the colonial Act of Council, the 6th of Queen Victoria. He was there for the purpose of returning the member whom they might elect to the Legislative Council. He had received a writ for that purpose, which Mr. Pilcher would have the kindness to read to them, wherein he was instructed to return such member as they might elect; and after the writ was read, he should be ready to receive the nomination of such candidates as they might think proper to propose. (Cheers.)

Mr. Pilcher having read the writ,

H. Donnison, Esq., said, they had assembled there that day, to discharge one of the most important duties which could devolve upon them, namely, to elect a member for the county of Northumberland, to represent them in the first Legislative Council of the colony; as they were happily all pretty well of one opinion as to who was the most proper person he would not needlessly waste their time by addressing them at any great length, but at once propose William Foster, Esq., as a fit and proper person to represent the county of Northumberland in the Legislative Council of New South Wales. (Cheers.)

C. M. Doyle, Esq., said, it was with the greatest pleasure that he came forward to second the proposition which had been made by Mr. Donnison. They had met there that day for the purpose of supporting their talented candidate Mr. Foster, and he again said that it was with the greatest pleasure that he seconded his nomination, and he did so with the more pleasure from the circumstance of having for the last fourteen or fifteen years personally known Mr. Foster; and he considered it to be an honour to the county, that a gentleman of such high talents and worth should come forward to offer himself as a candidate for their suffrages. He was sure, from the feeling which had been exhibited by the electors generally, throughout the county, no other gentleman could have come forward who would have been more acceptable to them than Mr. Foster was. It was therefore, he repeated, with feelings of the greatest pleasure, that, he that day came forward to second Mr. Foster's nomination. (Cheers.)

The Returning Officer then enquired if there was any other candidate to be proposed; but as no other gentleman was put in nomination, he said, that as there appeared to be no opposition to the election of Mr. Foster, he had nothing further to do than to declare that gentleman to be duly elected as the member for the county of Northumberland, and to return him as such, and he begged to congratulate the electors on the return of Mr. Foster as their representative.

Three cheers were then proposed for Mr. Foster, and were given in the most hearty manner.

Mr. Foster then came forward, and was received with loud cheers; after they had subsided, he said: he would not detain the electors for many minutes with what he had to say, for his heart was too full to permit him on that occasion to indulge in what was generally considered to be the great failing of all lawyers—much talking. He could not, however, quit them without begging of them to accept his warmest thanks for the high honour which they had conferred upon him, in electing him as the first representative of their great and important county in the Legislative Council of the colony. He was proud of the honour they had done him, and he should indeed be either more or less than man could he suppress those feelings of pride which he felt in his bosom on that occasion; but these feelings were blended with others of a different kind. When he contemplated the present position of the colony, and reflected upon the responsible and onerous duties of the high and important office to which he had aspired, and in which by their kind support he had that day been placed, he almost felt distrustful of himself, and feared that he might not be able to perform those duties in that creditable and efficient manner in which they ought to be discharged by the representative of so large and important a county. He would, however, assure them, that no effort should be wanting on his part to enable him to discharge the duties which would devolve upon him in the most efficient manner. From the kind and flattering support which he had received, not only there, but in every other district of the county, he should consider himself the most ungrateful of men did he not strain every nerve to support the interests of his constituents and the welfare of the whole colony. He would not then enter into any lengthy detail of his principles; upon several occasions he had given an exposition of his political opinions, which had appeared over and over again in the public papers of the day, and he therefore felt that it was not only unnecessary, but would be improper for him to trespass longer on their time. He would however repeat, that the pledges which had been given by him should neither be forgotten nor unobserved. They had honoured him by choosing him as their representative, and he trusted that when the time arrived for him to give an account of his stewardship, he should be able to return the trust which they had confided to his charge into their hands unsullied and unimpaired (cheers); and that when he looked back in review upon his conduct in the Council as their representative, he should have the satisfaction of reflecting that he had been neither an unworthy nor an unprofitable servant. (Great cheering.)

The gentlemen on the hustings then congratulated Mr. Foster on his election, and Mr. Keddie having proposed three cheers for liberal institutions, they were heartily given; and three more cheers having been given for the newly elected member, the Returning Officer declared the proceedings to be at an end.

COUNTY OF ARGYLE.

Goulburn, June 14.—Yesterday being the day appointed to elect a member for this county to serve in the new Legislative Council, and Mr. Bradley being the only candidate, he was met at his residence by his friends, who accompanied him to the place of election; and, as there was no contest, it must have been very gratifying to him to see so many come to testify their respect on this eventful occasion.

W. P. Faithfull, Esq., the Returning Officer, read the writ calling upon the constituency to elect a member.

Dr. Murphy claimed his privilege as an elector to propose W. Bradley, Esq., as a fit and proper person to represent the county, and was glad that no occasion existed for consuming the time of the electors by any lengthened eulogium. Mr. Bradley was so well known to all, and the absence of all opposition too, displayed, in a marked manner, the unanimity of the county in the fitness of its choice—(cheers). In Mr. Bradley the electors beheld a genuine Australian—one who has wrested his subsistence from the waste; one, who, by his own industry, energy, and perseverance, has raised himself to the highest pinnacle of colonial prosperity. But his worth does not so much exist in his vast possessions, as in the genuine benevolence of his heart—(cheers). Never did religion ask in vain, or was indigence turned from his door with disappointed hope. Industry and trade had been fostered by his liberality and enterprise—virtue and morality cherished by his precept and example. The time had now arrived when the voice of the people was required to select one who was willing to devote his time for the benefit of the county. Mr. Bradley was the man whom, though there may be others in the Council more skilled in the art and mystery of debate, yet there will be none more honest, independent, and unshaken by the frowns or smiles of power or party—(cheers).

Captain Gore seconded the proposition, and was confident that Mr. Bradley was the man to represent this county in the new Council, but would not enter further into his merits, as they were well known, and appeared to be so well appreciated that no other gentleman would contest the county with him.

Mr. Bradley then came forward and said, he was happy to meet his friends on this occasion, and from the manner in which they had received him, he felt persuaded he possessed the confidence of the constituency of the county—and that, too, without having used any unfair or mean acts to catch their votes. He was afraid he had kept too much aloof from them, and that this might be construed into a want of courtesy; but whatever might be their views respecting him, he had only one desire, and that was to represent them to the best of his ability in the new Legislative Council—(cheers). He was fully sensible of the importance of the trust confided in the representatives of the people, and only wished that his ability was equal to his desire to discharge that trust with satisfaction to the electors. He regretted the overwhelming difficulties and depression under which the colony was suffering, but dark as the cloud was, he was not one of those who looked on the colony as ruined; but he feared that no Legislative enactments would do much to give us relief. Debt was the incubus that was oppressing us and crushing our energies, and we can only look for permanent and satisfactory benefit to individual industry, perseverance, and, above all, to economy. He did not despair, but on the contrary, he possessed a lively hope that the colony would before long rise from its present state of exhaustion, and proceed again upon its course as prosperous as ever. The electors might depend upon him being at his post in Council, and that he would anxiously watch all measures affecting the interests of the colony generally, and of this county in particular—(cheers).

Mr. FAITHFULL declared W. Bradley, Esq., of Lansdowne Park, to be duly elected for the county of Argyle, there being no other candidate—(cheers).

Mr. BRADLEY returned thanks on being elected. He was proud to meet such a flattering reception as he had this day received. It now devolved upon him to look to their interests, and he hoped that when they met again, it would be with perfect satisfaction on both sides. To the gentlemen who proposed and seconded his nomination, and to the whole body of the constituency, he tendered his hearty thanks.

F. MACARTHUR, Esq., proposed a vote of thanks to the Returning Officer, W. P. Faithfull, Esq., which being seconded, was carried with acclamation. Three cheers were given for the Queen, and three for Mr. Bradley, which being given with one cheer more, the meeting dissolved.

Mr. BRADLEY met with his friends, and partook of a lunch after the election, in the Salutation Inn, which was tastefully decorated with flowers; between the centre windows the emblems of the colony were exhibited, over which a Crown was placed, on either side hung flags, with the device "Bradley and the People of Argyle," and in front of all a flag, containing the emblems of the three kingdoms. At this meeting the following toasts were given, and drunk with all the honours: "The Queen." "Mr. Bradley, the Member for Argyle." Mr. Bradley gave "The health and prosperity of the Independent Electors of Argyle." Dr. Yarnold gave "Mrs. Bradley and the Ladies of Argyle." Another gentleman gave "The Magistracy." Dr. Murphy returned thanks, and gave "The Prosperity of the Town of Goulburn." Another gentleman gave, "The Township of Bungonia, and our next merry Meeting." As the hour was pressing on, when a number of the electors was to sit down to dine, this convivial party broke up. A more harmonious meeting could not possibly have been, and the busy town gave a very fair representation of a popular English election on a small scale. Mr. Brodie gave a bullock, which was roasted in the market-place, for the benefit of all who choose to partake. Mr. M'Keller supplied bread, and Mr. Bradley two hogsheads of ale; the natives being forewarned of it, mustered in good numbers round the roasting beef, and when Mr. Bradley returned with his friends from the Court-house, he was saluted by three hearty cheers. At this time the scene was complete, and we do not remember to have seen any thing (every thing considered) so interesting in the colony.

A respectable number of the electors sat down to a sumptuous dinner, prepared by "mine host" of the Salutation, Mr. White in the chair, at which there was no want of wines, or any thing calculated to make the company as comfortable as they could wish.

A very respectable party of gentlemen, to the number of thirty, sat down to an elegant and sumptuous dinner at Mr. Bradley's house, F. Macarthur, Esq., of Norwood, in the chair, the duties of which he discharged in his usual urbane and gentlemanly manner. The selection of that gentleman to preside at the table gave universal satisfaction.

COOK AND WESTMORELAND ELECTION.

FRIDAY, JUNE 16.—The polling for this division of the above counties was held at Miller's Inn, Wilberforce, this day. At nine o'clock, a. m., Josiah Allen Betts, Esq., read his appointment as Deputy Returning Officer, signed by Mr. Walker, Police Magistrate at Hartley. Mr. Purefoy and Mr. Darling attended to watch proceedings on the part of Mr. George Bowman; and Mr. Beddek, solicitor, on behalf of Mr. John Panton. Some slight discussion took place in settling the preliminaries; which having been arranged, the polling commenced.

The first person whose vote was objected to was Joseph Fleming, on account of his name not appearing on the Electoral List.

Mr. PUREFOY stated, he was glad Mr. North was present, as he might perhaps recollect that Fleming was one of the parties who applied as a new claimant at the Court of Revision, held at Windsor, for the above counties: he contended that the Returning Officer, or his deputy, was bound to receive the vote tendered; in support of which he quoted the 59th section of the Reform Act.

Mr. BETTS perfectly understood Mr. Purefoy; and if he could satisfy him that His Excellency the Governor had in his instructions in any way referred the Returning Officers to that Act for their guidance, he would give it his consideration. He much wished that the proceedings of the day should give satisfaction; and was grieved that any person who was qualified to vote should be deprived of his right; but he did not at present conceive he had any alternative but to refuse the vote tendered.

Mr. PUREFOY explained, that he only wished Mr. Betts to make an entry on a separate piece of paper of such a vote having been tendered; the paper might be headed, "Names of Persons who have tendered their Votes, which were not allowed, in consequence of their Names not being on the Electoral List," or words to that effect.

Mr. BETTS said, it was his intention from the commencement to have done so, and that he would forward the same, with the Poll Book, to the Returning Officer, at Hartley.

Some discussion took place, as to whether Mr. Betts should receive the voting paper of Fleming, which he declined doing; he said, however, that he would alter the heading of the list before mentioned, to "Names of Persons who have tendered a Voting Paper, &c."

Mr. BEDDEK asked, whether it was to be understood that any other persons who might be in a similar situation to Fleming, should not tender their voting papers, until the voters who were not objected to should have given in their votes.

Mr. PUREFOY said, he did not see any necessity for it.

Mr. BETTS said, he considered the case of Fleming ought to be a precedent for every other case of a similar description, and he did not anticipate that in such cases any other point would be raised by the professional gentlemen; which they agreeing to, he stated he would consider them as they tendered their voting papers, and place them on a separate list.

The polling recommenced, and was continued without interruption, until Job Wilson tendered his voting paper, when Mr. Parnell (an elector) requested that the questions authorised by the 30th sections of the Act, 6 Victoria, No. 16, might be put to him; which having been done, and answered in the affirmative, his vote was allowed. The same questions were afterwards put to Thomas Tarrant, which were also answered in the affirmative.

No other interruption took place, and at four o'clock the poll closed; when the Poll Clerk declared the state of the same to be—

Mr. John Panton 90
Mr. George Bowman 27

The weather was very unfavourable, there being a drizzling rain all day, notwithstanding which, the people mustered pretty strong, and to their credit be it said, that no signs of disturbance or ill-feeling, appeared during the the whole course of the proceedings.

Shortly after four o'clock, Mr. Panton and his friends started for Windsor, preceded by the Saint Patrick's Teetotal Band. On reaching the Punt, there appeared on the other side of the river, a large assemblage of the town's-people, as also the Australian Teetotal Band, who had previously left Wilberforce, in order to be in readiness to meet Mr. Panton, on his crossing the Punt, and as soon as he reached the Windsor side of the river, the horses were taken out of his carriage, which was drawn by the people to his residence.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

SHEEP-BOILING.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—Having tried the experiment of boiling down two wethers (taken as an average of a prime flock of six hundred and fifty well bred Saxon-merino sheep, brought within the past few days from Yass Plains to this place for sale), and having found it succeed far beyond my expectations, I send you, herewith, the particulars of it: assured, by the lively interest which as public writers you have ever evinced in the welfare of the pastoral and other interests of the colony, you will give them a place in the Herald at your earliest convenience, in order that they may be placed before not only my brother flockowners here, but those of other parts.

Sydney, June 14, 1843.

Two wethers, weighing as below, taken from a prime flock of highly improved Saxon-merino sheep, brought from my flocks at Yass Plains, and now at Canterbury Farm, about five miles from this place.

Or 14s. 3½d. per sheep.

In order that flockowners and the public generally may be acquainted with the method of curing hams from the sheep slaughtered for the purpose of being boiled, and to take the fleece from the hide without trouble and expense of shearing, I beg to send you the accompanying memorandum on the subject of both:

MUTTON HAM.—Choose a fine-grained leg of wether mutton, of twelve or fourteen pounds weight; let it be cut ham shape, and hung two days. Then put into a stewpan half a pound of bay salt, the same of common salt, two ounces of saltpetre, and half a pound of coarse sugar, all in powder; mix and make it quite hot, then rub it well into the ham: let it be turned in the liquor every day; at the end of four days put two ounces more of common salt, in twelve days take it out, dry it, and hang it up in wood-smoke a week. This to be used in slices with stewed cabbage, mashed potatoes, or eggs, or for breakfast relish. The wool can be taken off the pelt in the most simple manner possible, merely placing two skins together, wool outside of course, and certain decomposition ensues from the heat, and in two days the wool pulls off with perfect ease.

It has now been proved, beyond a doubt, that the enormously overgrown increase of our flocks may, by a simple, unexpensive, and rapid process, be changed into articles of export: articles, too, much required, and bringing profitable returns in the English market—tallow, and the fleece. The flockowner may not, therefore, henceforth, look upon his flocks in a sorrowing and dejected way, as an incubus daily hurrying him to destruction, and of which he could not (although he gladly would) rid himself, in order to be freed from the heavy pecuniary expense attending their care and management, without the hope of realising (save at the shearing season) even a fourth of the sum necessary to pay his shepherds and watchmen, owing to the almost total absence of a market for any part of them, even at ruinous prices.

A new and prosperous dawn has now opened upon us, and the flockowners may not only realize from, but reduce their flocks to a number commensurate with the scanty supply of labour which the colony now affords, and resume the annual increase and improvement, for some time past, but particularly in the past and present season, very generally cast aside. Now, indeed, may we hope, and with much of certainty too, that the dark and dismal cloud which has long hovered over us will soon disappear, leaving behind it a bright sky and prosperous times. The present is not a delusion or a thing of the mind: annually we shall have an immense surplus from our flocks from which to procure tallow as at present, and still have sufficient to employ shepherds and watchmen, even were they to come to our shores at the rate of ten thousand a year for some years to come.

The flockowner should not, however, run wildly into the work of rendering his surplus sheep into tallow. Skilful persons should be called on to establish themselves in Sydney, and along our coast, in the vicinity of sheep-walks, whose flocks might, even from distances varying from one hundred to three hundred miles, be driven. Thus would the whole operation be carried on in a systematic way, and at a moderate expense, perhaps not more than from sixpence to ninepence per head, the expense of carriage saved, and, above all, the possibility even of making a bad unsaleable article for consumption avoided. Inferior tallow once sent to England could not fail to injure future shipments.

Parties of twenty men each, under experienced managers, would do more in three months than fifty such could possibly accomplish, wanting experience or the proper conveniency, to carry out their work in twelve months. Land carriage would also be saved, in itself a considerable profit to the flockowner. There are in Sydney, and other towns of the colony, men experienced in preparing tallow and wool for the home markets, and it is to be hoped that they will now come forward and form establishments in convenient places to receive the flocks of the interior.

Hitherto they have been brought in numbers far beyond the supply required to the market places throughout the colony, and consequently could not be disposed of at any price, however ruinous. The alternative alone was left to the owners to return them to their runs: now, they may have them changed into articles of export.

I remain, Gentleman,
Yours obediently,
H. O'BRIEN.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—The question brought before the public in your leading article of May 22, calling upon all parties for information on the intrinsic value of live stock, which was so singularly met by your correspondent, signed F. E., giving an estimate and remarks, whereby any person interested might be led to the adoption of his plan, has called forth great attention—which it seriously deserves, and through which, I believe, a great truth will be brought to light.

It is curious to observe the strong power which holds the mind in the love of gain. We see it in the humblest individuals—nay, it is carried back to the cause which gave rise to the old adage of "the stile, sow, &c."

I have been induced to reflect on this very prominent feature in our nature, from the quiet pocketing of the cash by a few prominent individuals in two or three trades of late.

However, I am not disposed to quarrel with any of the parties who have so snugly benefited by the ruin of others. The butcher, melter, candle and soap-maker, are excused, in my eye, as much as the grunting pig and hedgehog who luxuriate on the falling apples and acorns after the storm, insensible of the cause. But look at the miserable wretch, the "usurer," whose eye, turning from the honest look of every independent man with envy that he has him not in his snare. This is the lump of mortal clay which, though the pursuit of avarice has given him possession of that which should be the greatest happiness of our nature—the power to relieve the distressed of our fellow-creatures—who, with a knowledge of the hurricane and the avalanche, is like a toad gloating over the ills that surround him. This is the description of animal which is most to be pitied and despised, but I trust his day is on the wane. Nor is the cunning of the minor fry to be fed any longer. Settlers are now "awake," and it will be a "fine day" when they get fat wethers again at four shillings per head.

There is one thing suspicious in the letter of F. E.: namely, he professes that the adoption of his suggestions would benefit every one but himself. I can hardly conceive any person in the colony not benefited by it, or any business whatever but would gain by it; but if he can really show me that, I will cheerfully acknowledge him to be a greater patriot than

Your obedient servant,
A GRAZIER.

Limestone, 8th June.

P.S. As the extraction of fat from sheep has now created such universal attention, I trust you will seek every opportunity to enlighten your country subscribers on the subject.

THE ADMIRED GRANMORE ESTATE,
BALMAIN,
IV. MARINE LOTS FOR VILLAS,
IN GRANMORE BAY,
Near Mr. Blake's.

MR. STUBBS is directed to sell by Public Auction, at the Mart, King-street, on MONDAY, the 26th day of June, 1843, at twelve o'clock,

(As per plan at Mart)

A very beautiful Freehold Portion of Villa Building Ground, situated between the properties of Messrs. James Milligan and Mr. Blake, divided into having frontage to Bay Road of 29 feet 3 inches, more or less, by depths varying from 75 to 122 feet each, with water frontage to the Bay of 25 feet each, more or less. Lot 1 has frontage to Well Road and has on the plan a WELL described at the lower end for public use.

AS A MARINE ASPECT,

Easterly, looking across Darling Harbour towards Sydney, and a portion of Pyrmont, there cannot be a more quiet or delightful retreat from the bustle and noise of town, for a residence, or more convenient for a quick despatch of communication with the metropolis.

THE BUILDER AND MECHANIC

May rest assured that any cottage at Balmain of four or six rooms will let off-hand instantly.

The Ferry is most reasonable; situation preferable for health, domestic and general convenience for men of business with all parts of the City and Darling Harbour.

Common sense points out from the turn things have taken lately in the City—the aversion people have evinced to additional burthensome expenses—their incomes falling off—that tenants will be found for Balmain residences before they are even finished.

Note.—Allotments at Balmain have lately realised two hundred per cent. on former purchases.

Terms, very liberal, at time of sale. 8215

ENGLISH EXTRACTS.

THE EPISODE OF THE DIAMOND NECKLACE.—Another unfortunate circumstance occurred to lend arms to malignity; and the episode of the diamond necklace, which was a notorious fraud effected in the Queen's name, augmented the number of her enemies. This event, which proved so fruitful in its results, was the effect of an intriguing woman's baseness, the underhand dealings of some persons who were near the throne, the shortsightedness of the Court, and, above all, the inconceivable prejudices which the people entertained against a princess endowed with qualities which would have rendered her an object of love, had they been appreciated. Boehmer and Bassange, the jewellers of the throne, after having collected a great number of very valuable diamonds, composed a necklace, the worth of which was enormous: in 1785 they offered it to the queen for the sum of 1,600,000 francs; she expressed her admiration of its beauty, and unhesitatingly replied that she would rather that the king armed two vessels of the line with that amount than spend it on the necklace; it being the epoch in which America was struggling for her independence. The Cardinal Prince de Rohan, who entertained culpable sentiments for Marie Antoinette, had displeased her by a correspondence in which he had treated the empress Marie Therese with disrespect, and wishing to recover the queen's favour, had the imprudence to confide the secret of his passion to the wife of one of the gardes-du-corps, named Lamotte, who pretended to have been descended from the family of Valois. This woman was the daughter of a man who was plunged in vice as well as misery, from the effects of his profligate habits, and had been dismissed from a corps of gendarmes to which he belonged for having negociated false letters of exchange. In order to dupe the cardinal, Madame Lamotte flattered his pride, persuaded him that she had private interviews with the queen on secret affairs, and informed him that the queen was desirous of procuring the necklace without the king's knowledge. The cardinal seized the occasion of performing the Queen a service by secretly procuring an object worthy of her, and negociated the affair with Boehmar. He accordingly presented the jeweller with a document containing a promise of partial payment at stated periods, which the Queen was to procure by economies on her own annuity, and which promissory-note was given by Madame Lamotte, and signed Marie Antoinette by an accomplice of that lady, named Retaux de Villette. The valuable necklace was, therefore, deposited in the hands of the prelate, who commissioned his confidante to convey it to the queen, whom she pretended to have frequent interviews with, and promised, on receiving it, to procure one for him. The necklace had no sooner fallen into her hands than this perfidious woman broke it, and sent her husband to England with the diamonds, for which he obtained a considerable sum of money. A short time after Madame Lamotte, who was born in indigence, and possessed nothing, astonished her acquaintance by her luxury and extravagance. In the mean time the Cardinal de Rohan expected to be recompensed with the promised interview for his services in the affair, and Madame Lamotte was, therefore, obliged to continue the intrigue. The queen was frequently in the habit of taking evening walks, and giving têtes champêtres in the gardens of Trianon, which were illuminated on those occasions, and was always accompanied by those persons whom she honoured with her intimacy. At one of these evening diversions Madame Lamotte placed a young lady named Oliva in an obscure grove, and promised her fifteen thousand francs if she would personate the queen; she then announced to the cardinal in a mysterious manner that her majesty would grant him an interview, and that, on this first occasion, would only present him her hand. The delighted cardinal suffered himself to be conducted to an isolated part of the gardens, where a closely-veiled woman presented her hand to him with dignity; the prelate kissed it with transport, when she made a sign for him to retire, after pronouncing these words in a low tone of voice—"Vous pouvez esperer que le passé sera oublie." Nevertheless, the favours with which the cardinal had been decoyed were not renewed, and he was consuming himself with vain hopes, when the time for the dénouement of this deplorable intrigue arrived; the term assigned for the payment of the necklace having passed unnoticed, the jewellers sent a memorial to Marie Antoinette, supplicating for a part of the money. The astonished queen instantly commanded their presence, and they assisted in explaining the odious plot. She immediately repaired to the king's apartment, and demanded justice for the injury that had been done her by Cardinal de Rohan. This prelate had just concluded his daily functions as grand almoner at Versailles, and was still clad in his pontifical robes, when summoned before the monarch. The queen challenged him to speak the truth with just and energetic indignation: "Monsieur le Cardinal," she said, "mettez la main sur la conscience, et dites si ce n'est pas depuis quatre ans la première fois que je vous parle?" Summoned to reply, the cardinal avowed his error, and tremblingly declared how he had been deceived by the Countess Lamotte Valois. He was immediately arrested and conveyed to the Bastille, but before his papers were secured he had sufficient time to give orders in German to his valet to burn several, which he designated to him, Madame Lamotte avowed her crime, and the parliament acquitted the cardinal in 1786: Retaux de Villette was condemned to banishment; Lamotte to the gallows; and his wife to be scourged, branded with a hot iron, and to spend the remainder of her days in solitary imprisonment.—Memoirs of the Queens of France.

THE ARCHIVES OF BARCELONA.—It is known that amongst the buildings set on fire during the bombardment of Barcelona was that containing the archives of Catalonia. The following account will show how great the loss of these documents must be in an historical point of view:—There were collected there charters and acts of the early courts of Barcelona from the year 844, and documents relating not only to the province of Catalonia and the counts of Roussillon and Cerdagne, but to the kingdoms of Arragon, Valencia, Majorca, Sardinia, Sicily, and Naples. The building contained the proceedings of all the ministries from the union of the kingdom of Arragon with the principality of Catalonia, as well as copies of all treaties of peace, alliances, and such matters. There were also deposited there the original papers of the States General, in fifty volumes, from those held at Perpigna by Peter IV., in 1350, to those held by Philip V., at Barcelona, in 1702. Not less than 856 original bulls of the Pope were there, of which the dates ranged from the pontificate of Benedict IX., in 1024, to that of Clement XI., in 1709. There were 17,640 documents written on papyrus, parchment, or cotton paper. Those on papyrus or paper were rolled up separately, but the parchments were tied up in collections. At the period when paper was first made of rags, about the thirteenth century, registers were formed to copy letters patent, and other acts proceeding from the sovereign authority. These registers begun in 1214, were concluded in 1808, and comprised twenty-eight reigns, from James I. to Charles. They were 6,070 in number, and each register contained between 300 and 400 leaves in folio. The learned Capmeny affirms, in the preface to the fourth volume of his Mémoires Historiques sur Barcelone, that the archives of the Crown of Arragon were the most memorable in Europe, if their antiquity, good preservation, extent, variety, and importance, were taken into consideration.—Galignani's Messenger.

WHY ENGLAND IS NOT A MUSICAL NATION.—Having, like many others now living, entered upon the study of the composer's art with all that enthusiasm and ever-shining hope which make all things appear possible, how was my enthusiasm checked, my hope bedimmed, when I found that every door was shut against the English composer; or, if not quite shut, left but so little way ajar, that the merest trifles could alone pass in. Added to this disappointment came the mindless, but unceasing taunt, that England was not a musical nation; therefore it was useless to struggle for musical renown. Hearing this, it became a question—why should England not be a musical nation? Did we not possess ears, voices, minds to comprehend, tastes to discover and appreciate the beautiful in art, come in what shape it would? Were foreign composers made of different mould to other men? If not, surely we might still hope that the land which bore a Shakspeare, a Milton, a Byron, and a Scott, and that wonderful revolutionizer of the world, a Watt, had still some few grains of dust left worthy of forming a musical genius, whose statue might one day be placed, without insult, beside even that of Mozart! Had we not already equalled, and even surpassed, our foreign rivals in almost all things that had been encouraged? Encouraged;—in that word lay the answer. England was not a musical nation, because her native musical composers had never been encouraged!—From a paper by G. Herbert Rodwell, Esq., in the Dramatic and Musical Review.

NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICAN COFFEE HOUSE

MR. SAMUEL DAVIES, elder son of the late James Davies, deceased, and administrator to his estate, begs most respectfully to inform the members of the Subscription Room, from whom his late father received so many acts of support and kindness during his life-time, that he has determined to carry on the business of the Subscription Room in all its departments, as it has existed during the last sixteen years, as well as of the tavern and hotel; and he trusts with numerous improvements, now in progress, of fulfilment, with regard to the quantity, quality and priority of information from every quarter of the world. To accomplish these objects no pains or expense will be spared; and Mr. Samuel Davies hopes, in consequence, that he will receive from the members of the Subscription Room some portion, at least, of that support which enabled his father to render it the centre of political and commercial intelligence.

Arrangements are in progress, and will speedily be completed, for placing in the hands of the members of the Subscription Room not only the earliest intelligence which may reach Bristol, Liverpool, Falmouth, Portsmouth, Dover &c., but also by Mr. Waghorn's express, whatever can be forwarded by him from Egypt, India and China, and at the same time as the news are received by the morning and evening newspapers.

It is confidently hoped that attention to the interests and wishes of the manners of the Subscription Room will afford general satisfaction; and Mr. Samuel Davies begs further to state that for the accommodation of those who may honour him with their favours in the tavern and hotel department, or the North and South American Coffee House, he has laid in a complete wine stock of the most superb wines, spirits, malt, and other liquors, which it is possible to procure and to which he begs to call their attention.

☞ A party wishing to go into the country, upon a cheap purchase, never had such a property presented to their notice, or better suited to their purpose, than this; and what is the distance of thirty miles from Sydney, securing such a neighbourhood and such profitable advantages? If for the purpose of an INN, nothing on earth could be more easily altered, or at so little expense? A whole range of accommodation is accomplished, and more than as much as the Act may require for a licensed house; and the situation, every one knows, must catch all the traffic of the country in the public line.

To speak of the money expended on these premises might intimidate parties from attending the sale, it is therefore reiterated that for cash "IT WILL GO FOR WHAT IT WILL FETCH." 7633
